Spiritual Enrichment Tour

Dashu Dist. ashu District is located in the southwest of Kaohsiung. It is said that more red years ago, there was an old banyan tree on the Gaoping Riverside surrounded hand in hand by many people. Later, although the tree disappeared the homophone "da shu" as the name of this place. The economic lifeline for communities in Dashu District is fruit-planting. The Yuherbau Litchis and the Ananas comosos cv are the most well-known agricultural products of Dashu District. In addition to the religious atmosphere of Fo Guang Shan, there are also many scenic spots and rich natural resources such as wetland ecology, leisure farms and historical monuments in Dashu District. It is a township with comprehensive humanism, culture, and beautiful landscapes.

Old Railroad Bridge Support and Information

It has the second-class historic site - the old iron bridge and rich ecological resources. The park has outdoor plazas, natural ecological zones, spaces for water-lovers, bikeways and other facilities. It is also a unique

Old Railroad Bridge over Gaoping River

Designed and built by Japanese engineer Iida Toyoji, it was completed in 1913. It is mainly a circular steel structure and was the longest bridge in Asia at that time. It has been listed as a national monument because of its historical and cultural value.

The Monument of Toyoji lida

lida Toyoji came from Shizuoka in Japan. During the Japanese ruled period, he was the engineer in charge of the construction of the Pingtung Line Railway. He passed away at 40 years old owing to overworking and illness when constructing the Danshuixi Iron Bridge (the Old Railroad Bridge for today). After his death, a monument for him was fundraised and built by his friend Saburo Koyama and others. The personally written books, manuscripts, calligraphy and paintings left by him was buried 100 meters north of Jiuqutang Station.

O Dongjhaoshan Guandi Temple

Originally located in the Mingde Hall of Wenfang Community in Sinsing District,

Kaohsiung, due to the growing number of worshippers, the Temple relocated to its current location in Dashu Township. It was officially completed in 1990. The temple mainly enshrines the golden statue of Guandi

With its white balustrades paired with red pillars and golden-yellow glazed roof tiles, the Temple is both grand and eye-catching

The building mainly consists of three levels. The first floor enshrines the main deity, Wenluo Qingshui Zushi, flanked by the Puzun Buddha and Wenchang Dijun. This circular structure symbolizes the perfection of heavenly virtues and peace in the human world. It also provides an excellent vantage point for

San-He Tile Kiln

Located next to the Old Railroad Bridge Park, it was formerly known as the "No. Shun'an Refined Tile Factory". It has been handed down in the Lee Family from generation to generation and has a history of 100 years. It is a third-class historic site. In the Dashu District, there were more than 20 brick kilns in the prime of the industry. Although there is now only the San-He Tile Kiln in the present after the decline of the industry, this kiln has been combined with local literature and history and transformed into a cultural and creative industry that developed

Formerly known as the "Takao Waterway Pump Room", it is the earliest source of water for Dashu District. It is a historical heritage of waterway facilities and is listed as a third-class historic site. The exterior of the Jhuliao Water Intake Station blends Chinese and Western styles. In addition to the decoration on roof tiles and gables of the traditional Chinese architecture, it has the building characteristic

Taiwan Pineapple Museum

As the only existing pineapple industrial building since the Japanese ruled period, its predecessor was the Taifang Pineapple Factory, which was built by Yeh Chin-Tu, a person from Twatutia/Dadaocheng, in 1936. After two years of restoration by Bureau of Cultural Affairs, Kaohsiung City Government, it has become a Taiwanese pineapple workshop and divided into three halls — Dashu Literature and History Exhibition Hall, the Pineapple Industry Exhibition Hall, and the Wanglai Organization. It has been a place where visiting experiences are held with leisure for tourists.

The Old House of the Jhuang Hidden invisibly among Lychee forests at hilltop of Kuvan Hut in

Dashu District, it is a well-preserved century-old traditional courtyard house. It was built by exquisite craftsmanship. Although the house has no carved beams and painted rafters, it is filled with the rustic warmth that is amazing everywhere in the house. Anyone who wants to appreciate the simplicity and elegance of the historical buildings would definitely be enchanted and lingered by the Old House of the Jhuang.

Oragon's Eyes Well

The wells offer groundwater in Dashu District are famous for their clean water source. There are two natural wells in Longmu Village; one is larger, and the other is smaller. For they are arranged like a dragon's eyes, they are called Dragon's Eyes Well. The spring water they offer is extremely sweet.

During the Japanese ruled period, they were listed as Taiwan's Famous Spring.

© Fo Guang Shan

Founded in 1967 by Master Hsing Yun and his disciples, Fo Guang Shan, which covers over fifty hectares, and the Buddha Museum, built in 2011, stretch along the right bank of the Gaoping River. Numerous Buddha halls of various sizes are arranged according to the mountain's contours, creating a majestic and grand Buddhist holy land in Taiwan.

Fo Guang Shan Buddha Museum

As an official member of the International Council of Museums (ICOM), Fo Guang Shan attracts tens of millions of visitors each year, making it a must-visit holy destination for travelers. The most distinctive feature of Fo Guang Shan is the world's largest and tallest seated Buddha - the Fo Guang Big Buddha. The main hall houses the actual relics of Siddhartha Gautama (the Buddha). Besides the hall, there are permanent galleries, exhibition halls, and the Great Enlightenment Auditorium that can accommodate 2,000 people, where art performances and international forums are regularly held.

© E-DA WORLD

It is a leisure resort park in Southern Taiwan with eight themes as leisure, vacation, health, education, art, cultural, shopping and real estate. It is a multi-functional international resort paradise that combines five-star hotels, shopping plazas, theme parks, etc. Large-scale events such as the New Year's Eve party and the Lantern Festival have been held here, which makes the leisure and sightseeing development in Dashu District rise to the international stage.

Formerly known as "Cui Ping Yan (Cui Ping Rock), Guanyin Mountain is one of the top ten prestigious mountains in the Kaohsiung area. Named for its main peak's resemblance to Guanyin (the Goddess of Mercy) seated with other peaks surrounding her, the area boasts expansive lands largely composed of iron-rich, fine, soft sandy rocks that are comfortable for barefoot walking. Thus, it is also known as the "Barefoot Park," making it an ideal choice for physical fitness, outings, and religious pilgrimages. The famous "Eight Sights of Guanyin" include Sunset at (旅遊) Cuiping, Golden Bell Lingtai, the Stone Drum Shaking the Mountains, Ancient Tree Deity Footprints, Stone Brush Pen, Guanyin above the Clouds, Lotus Pond's Moonlight, and Morning Sun on the Tunnel Exit, each offering unique and breathtaking views.
